Issue 252 Friday 16th January

Dear Parents and carers,

What an exciting and memorable week it has been at Cledford! On Tuesday and Thursday, our pupils were lucky enough to visit The New Vic Theatre in Newcastle-under-Lyne to see their spectacular production of The Little Mermaid. What a show it was! The children were completely captivated by the breath taking acrobatics, stunning silk work and a phenomenal live band. Since returning to school, our pupils have been working incredibly hard to create artwork for our Theatre Gallery, helping us to preserve the memory of such a wonderful performance. It has been a joy to see the creativity and enthusiasm inspired by the visit reflected across the school.

We were also delighted with the success of our first Stay and Play session this week for parents and carers with children aged under 5. It was lovely to welcome families into school. Further information about upcoming sessions can be found opposite.

Next week, we are pleased to be launching our Henry Workshops for parents of pre-school aged children. These sessions will offer practical hints and tips, guidance around routines and behaviour, and wider family support in a relaxed and welcoming environment. Please get in touch if you'd like to attend.

Have a great weekend.

Mr C Adlington

EYFS News

The reception children have had a very exciting week! They all enjoyed the visit to the theatre on Tuesday to watch a truly magical performance of The Little Mermaid and their behaviour was a credit to the school (and you!). I hope they have told you all about the amazing acrobatic mermaids and singing red coral!

The children in pre-school have been learning some new vocabulary this week- 'nocturnal' and 'diurnal' and have enjoyed a story called 'The rabbit, the dark and the biscuit tin'. Can they talk to you about animals which are nocturnal? Can they explain what diurnal means? They have also enjoyed lots of maths activities based on subitising (seeing small group totals without needing to say numbers out loud) They have been saying the phrase "No need to count, say the amount" with numbers to 3.

Nursery children have been learning about the colour black this week, listening to the story 'Room on the Broom' and singing a rhyme about snowflakes.

We hope you all have a lovely weekend keep warm!

Mrs Higgins and the EYFS team.
